Drinking woman's diet

By Pat Kennedy

WE'RE OPEN! COME IN! says the blue sign.

Fooey.

I push open the carved door to 1822 Catalina Court, wondering whether I should tell them what a waste this is going to be.

Here I am at the Diet Center. And I've never stuck to a diet for more than two days in my life.

Except, of course, for that glorious week in college when the infirmary doctor laid a supply of amphetamines on me. For a week I literally ran uphill and down dale, all over the Mt. Holyoke campus. Then the effects wore off...

"Hi! I'm Vivian! Can I get you a cup of tea?"

Vivian Oswald, big-eyed, interested, SKINNY. Hands me cinnamon - scented tea in a little glass cup and invites me to sit down.

She takes a health history, outlines the low - fat, high - protein diet I've said I'd try for two weeks. And informs me I'll be taking 22 pills and a half - gallon of water every day.

"We think most overweight people are functional hypoglycemics," Vivian explains. "That means your blood sugar level gets too low unless you get plenty of protein and very few carbohydrates. With low blood sugar, you feel hungry and miserable, and overeat."

That's me, all right. But what to do about it? She produces a little white bottle. "Diet supplements.

"These tablets contain protein to keep your blood sugar level high, and vitamin B for your nerves. Besides these, you'll take vitamin C, calcium and potassium tablets. And plenty of water to help flush out those fat cells."

She produces a little brown bag and drops in the white bottle. Then she adds a bag of the spiced tea. "You can have all you want of this."

A bar of soap and a sample of special hand cream. "Don't use anything with lanolin. It clogs your pores so your body can't get rid of its natural oils and wastes." And big jars of calcium and Vitamin C pills, plus an envelope of potassium tablets.

Last but not least, some vanilla - smelling "protein powder" plus a recipie booklet and a diet guide. Then, the rotten part: weighing, measuring, even snapping a Polaroid picture of my unsmiling, pudgy self.

I'm sent on my way with admonitions to shop for the special items on my diet and to return EVERY SINGLE DAY for a weigh - in, advice and more diet supplements.

This is gonna be hard.

FRIDAY: The first day of my diet. I'm on the two - day, 1,250 - calorie "conditioning diet." This is supposed to be easier than the real thing, which I start Sunday. The worst part is swallowing all that liquid in the morning: juice of half a lemon in hot water ... one pint of cold water with my pills ... then some coffee...ugh!!

SATURDAY: Why, oh why did I start this diet on a weekend? I'm going to visit a friend in Fairfax. We've been invited out for pizza in the afternoon, then to a party at night.

Faithfully, I pack a huge brown bag full of vegetables, chicken breasts and hard - boiled eggs. Feeling really virtuous, I manage to pass up the pizza offer, chomp my way through the party on pepper strips and celery, and even take the kids to Old Uncle Gaylord's Ice Cream Parlor ordering black coffee for myself.

State water cuts reduce area supply

Zone 7 will lose some 7.95 billion gallons of water as part of the state's sharp water cut announced yesterday in Sacramento.

State Water Project directors announced 60 per cent slashes for agricultural districts and 10 per cent cuts for cities and industries.

Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, under contract with the SWP to provide aqueduct water in the Valley, will lose 13¼ per cent of its 18,400 - acre - foot request.

Zone 7 general manager Mun Mar said the impact would be "not great, particularly if people in the Valley do begin to stop wasting water."

Mar will be at a water contractors meeting in Fresno this afternoon and a Zone 7 directors meeting tonight.

"We're going to have to work with the retailers (the cities) pretty closely to make sure nobody gets hurt badly," he said.

The zone buys state water and sells it to the City of Pleasanton, Valley Community Services District and the California Water Co. Cal Water in turn sells to Livermore residents.

Mar said some assessments already have been made, but "now that we have the specifics we will have to grind through the numbers."

The zone can simply cut the quantity of aqueduct water it sells to the retailers, or make up the state cuts by adding well water.

Well water pumped from the Valley's underground water tables is harder and contains more "total dissolved solids."

The zone "will make it up if it has to," Mar said, but added the directors would emphasize conservation.

"We'll have enough if everybody does their job," he said. "People can cut 20 per cent without even feeling it if they make a conscientious effort."

If either Zone 7 or any of the retailers raises the percentage of well water, the state's Regional Water Quality Control Board may step into the picture.

The RWQCB holds a cease and desist order over the Valley, banning new sewer connections until the "total dissolved solids" content of treated effluent is lowered. Well water will raise the TDS level.

VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan said the district already had scheduled a meeting next week "to go over the entire situation from a conservation standpoint."

The RWQCB, he said, "probably knew it was coming. They probably expect this on all fronts."

The regional water board was meeting yesterday afternoon and its officials could not be reached for comment.

The state's deputy director of the Department of Water Resources said towns and industries are not expected to be left without water by yesterday's move. But some agricultural land will go unplanted, said Bob James.

"For cities and industries who have contracts with us, this will mean at least substantial voluntary conservation at the minimum," said James. "But there'll be more than enough water to protect permanent crops like orchards."

The Kern County Water Agency, lifeblood of the Central Valley's agriculture, will lose 55 per cent of its water ration. Some 264,610-acre-feet of water — 86.26 billion gallons — were slashed from its request.

Meanwhile, the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California had its water ration cut only 1½ per cent, some 79,440 - acre - feet.

New court on county land

Criminal justice activity is growing in the Amador - Livermore Valley at a rate that will soon require expanded court facilities, but it is the opinion of the presiding jurist that such a court "should be located on land now owned by the county, and be accessible to all of the people."

Judge John A. Lewis further contends that "Santa Rita or the Staples Ranch" is the best site for such a courthouse, but in any event "it will be somewhere in Pleasanton" because that area is "accessible to the great majority of the people" who would be using that court.

Lewis touched on a wide range of judicial matters in a 45 - minute appearance before a Tuesday noon gathering of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce. Fifty people were in attendance at that luncheon.

Eighty per cent of all cases are drug or alcohol related, hard drug usage increasing.

.....Judge Lewis

Judge Lewis revealed that the Livermore - Pleasanton muni court last year earned revenue that was $23,000 in excess of the cost of providing those two judges and 22 employees. In addition, part of the $541,000 earned in fines was redistributed to local jurisdictions ... $94,218 to City of Livermore, $28,331 to Pleasanton, $3900 to the Department of Fish and Game and "several hundreds of hours of labor" produced by sentencing for public facilities and parks within the two cities and the county area.

Lewis stressed however that "I'm not sure earning that excess revenue is good ... courts should not be in the revenue - producing business."

Much of that revenue is attributed to the two freeways that pass through this Valley "but I don't want people to think we are setting speed traps just to catch passers - by."

He believes that "the quality of justice has been and is reasonably good" over the years in this judicial district; he acknowledges Santa Rita Prison as "a real deterrent" to most criminals while admitting that "it is a facility that must be replaced."

He expressed concern for "some higher court rulings these days" that appear to "give the accused more protection than the accuser ... we need legislation to provide meaningful compensation to the victim."

He warned also of a trend whereby "the courts are making findings that can cost the taxpayers millions of dollars, but in which the people have no vote." One example was the controversial Serrano - Priest decision guaranteeing equal financial support for all public schools "and that I am informed may cost this state upwards of 300 million dollars."

Judge Lewis noted that high courts often act "because the state legislature has failed to take the

Pleasanton offers to cut aqueduct use

PLEASANTON — The city council beat Zone 7 to the punch Monday night by voluntarily offering to cut back part of its share of state aqueduct water during the coming year.

Council members felt this would be the city's little bit in helping parts of the state get the water they need desperately. The city has its own wells and a "10 year supply of water" in them, so it's no problem to take a little less state water and pump more well water, said Assistant City Manager Alan Campbell.

Yesterday Zone 7 was notified that it will receive 13 per cent less water from the state aqueduct because of the drought emergency, so the council's action Monday night appears to be right on target.

Campbell didn't mention any specific amount in the switch from aqueduct water to well water. There will be a saving in dollars if the city renegotiates its contract with Zone 7, but the saving could be short - lived, said Campbell. When wet weather returns, the city will want to restock the underground water supply with more state water and that will mean at least a return to contract levels, said Campbell.

The switch to more well water will mean harder water for local residents and Council Member Ken Mercer noted that more people may want to install water softeners.

"That's a matter of personal preference," said Campbell.

Special BART fares

BART will reduce all fares to a flat 50 cents Washington's Birthday holiday, Feb. 21.

Track fans should pick up a BART chit at the North Berkeley Station upon exiting.

Shuttle bus service will be provided to and from Golden Gate Fields.

CCC anti-smoking rule

Contra Costa County Supervisors have adopted a policy which will regulate smoking in county buildings.

Smoking will be prohibited in elevators, waiting rooms of public health care facilities; the supervisors' chambers; halls, reading and public meeting rooms of libraries; at public reception counters and at least 20 per cent of the total dining area of each county eating facility.

County department heads were given the authority to establish smoking policies within their own departments.

Supervisor hits MTC

Recommendations from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) on how to finance mass transit over the next decade were criticized as "inequitable" Tuesday by Contra Costa County Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville.

Hasseltine said a proposed 50-cent toll increase on the Bay and Dumbarton bridges would unfairly penalize residents of Contra Costa and Alameda counties.

Hasseltine's remarks came at the conclusion of a presentation of the MTC's financial study before the board of supervisors.

Along with the bridge toll increase, the study recommended making permanent the temporary half-cent sales tax for BART and adjusting fares for BART, AC Transit and San Francisco Muni so that 35 per cent of their operating costs come from the fare box.

Housing unit appointees

Dawn Gordner and Pat Broughton were appointed to the Pleasanton Housing Authority board of commissioners Monday night by city council.

Neither appointee favored a specific approach for the current controversy over Komandorski Village, the city's low cost housing complex.

Some suggest emolition for the vintage World War II buildings, and relocation inside Pleasanton city limits. Others boost refurbishing of the two-story structures.

For details, see page 14.

Livermore nixes tract

A lawyer and an engineer failed to convince Livermore city council Monday that it should hold off decision on a tentative tract map for a proposed large subdivision east of town.

Instead, council rejected the map.

A number of objections were laid out before the two who were fighting for a development of 262 single family lots on 89.5 acres near Vasco Road.

Water control unit eases sewer ban

OAKLAND — The current ban on additional hookups to Livermore's sewage system was conditionally lifted in part yesterday, but the Regional Water Quality Control Board continued the connection moratorium on the Valley Community Services District.

At its regular monthly meeting, the board decided late yesterday that Livermore had made real progress toward finding a solution to the Valley's sewage crisis. It ordered that 61 sewer connections approved but not issued when the ban took effect be released if Valley leaders begin design work on a wastewater disposal system by March 4.

Regional water board directors and staff severly criticized the management ability of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) for failing to observe critical deadlines inherent in the project.

"We see a lack of management capabilities ... a failure to map out a schedule of critical actions," said Fred Dierker, executive officer of the regional board.

Roger James, staff engineer for the board, agreed: "The LAVWMA staff failed to expedite the paperwork necessary for design work to start."

The sewer connection ban was imposed Dec. 21, but allows no additional hookups unless the permit was issued prior to Nov. 24, date of the regional board's initial enforcement action.

The ban was put into effect because the Valley continues to dump sewage into Alameda Creek in violation of discharge standards. The effluent flows down the creek and pollutes the underground fresh water supplies of Fremont.

Valley voters defeated a revenue bond measure Nov. 2 that would have supplied funds for construction of a 22-mile export pipeline to dump the waste into San Francisco Bay. LAVWMA directors are currently attempting to decide which of three export pipelines would best solve the problem.

VCSD had made no progress on the crisis, the board decided, and voted to continue the ban there. But a spokesman pointed out it is a moot question, since the district could issue no more permits due to capacity constraints.

Teachers' group criticizes counsel pact

The Amador and Pleasanton school districts are paying $1,000 a month for legal counsel and contract negotiations representation to a San Francisco-based law firm that purportedly performs the same services for 10 other school districts ranging from Novato on the north to Carmel on the south.

A contract currently in force between the Valley school districts and Keith V. Breon, of the California Street firm of Breon, Galgani and Godino, states that the Amador - Pleasanton districts will pay Breon $16,000 in installments of $1,000 a month plus $40 an hour for each hour in excess of 96 hours per quarter — with the consent of Superintendent Bruce Newlin.

Breon has provided legal counsel and negotiations representation for Amador and Pleasanton the past 2½ years. His rate of pay reportedly has remained the same since he was first hired.

Breon and his partners, primarily John Hudak, have also provided legal counsel in negotiations with classified employes and on behalf of the administration in the San Ramon school district's legal tiff with teacher Boyer August. The latter was recently awarded a decision in that case.

The same firm is reported to provide legal counsel and/or negotiations representation, for unknown rates of renumeration, for school administrations in the Murray School District, San Lorenzo, Novato, Monterey and Carmel.

Breon, a resident of Portola Valley, is also on the school board in that community.

Some teacher organizations have been highly critical of Breon's contract with the Amador and Pleasanton districts.

In a recent statement, supposedly detailing Breon's agreement with the districts, the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association (AVSEA), stated, "You should realize that the amount of money paid to this outsider is approximately 40 per cent of all the money that is separating us in contract negotiations.

"As yet the public is unaware that while the district sits back and waits for teachers to bow to their demands, all of the AVSEA leadership and negotiating team members are having to divert time and energy to negotiations strategy and tactics. This is bound to have a negative effect on the educational process. The district administration, we must conclude, doesn't care about meeting the educational needs of this community. If they did, they would be exercising leadership in an effort to bring about a settlement."

The current contract with Breon went into effect March 1, 1976 and will run through June 30.

Breon agrees to provide administration of the district and the respective boards with "approximately" 32 hours per month or 96 per quarter.

The latter stipulation, which calls for a payment of $40 per hour for time over and above the 96 per quarter, could result in the Amador district paying considerable additional monies for just one service provided by Breon — counsel in the dismissal hearing versus former Amador teacher Miriam Wain.

One district administrator believes well over 100 hours were spent on the Wain case alone.

Shop talker

The finest high school agriculture speaker in the state, Livermore High's Bart Broadman (center), couldn't make it to Atlanta to take advantage of the free trip he had won — so he was presented instead with a $500 savings bond yesterday at the Alameda County Resource Conservation District office in Livermore. Here, RCD board member Ed Rundstrom hands Bart the check. Looking on are Livermore High agriculture department chairman Jim Coelho, second from right; and RCD members (from left) Marty Martin, Harry Lefever, August Hagemann and Cornelius Frydendal. Heritage Guild gets a boost

LIVERMORE — The Heritage Guild wants a slice of the pie when the county allocates its funds from the Coastal and Park Bond Act, better known as Proposition Two in November's election. City Council Monday gave the Guild a boost.

The county's parks advisory commission asked Guild Chairwoman Janet Newton to submit a proposal for the funding of a specific historic project and said a statement of support and cooperation from a local jurisdiction would be required.

The grant rules provide funds must go through a public agency and could not go directly to the Guild.

Newton told the council she had to submit an application to the county by the deadline this Friday.

She plans to request $50,000 to develop the Duarte Garage and Lincoln Highway Museum on L Street.

Council approved a letter of support, but conditioned the letter with an either/or request which depends on the manner of allocation by the county.

The county plans to allocate approximately 20 per cent of its $4,026,736 share to regional agencies and 80 per cent to local agencies.

Division of local funding is leaning in favor of a per capita basis, but the county may require a certain amount to go for historical preservation.

Council said it would be glad to be the sponsoring agency, but did not want to diminish funds going to Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, which may get as much as $154,550.

If the county does not require funding to go to specific historic projects, council recommended LARPD receive and administer the funds. The Duarte project would be recommended.

If city sponsorship would take funds from LARPD, the motion by Councilman John Staley would still recommend administration by LARPD.

Newton told council Sacramento architect Bob McCabe, whose plans are being used in the renovation of Ravenswood Mansion, has already begun preparing plans for the historic garage.

Candidates in Murray give views

DUBLIN —Four Murray School board candidates felt they can "live with" the conversion of Frederiksen School, but Linda Cooley believes Dublin is still better suited.

Candidates aired their views on a host of issues at a forum attended by 30 persons at Dublin School last night.

Mrs. Cooley, along with Harry Molz, were members of the Citizens Advisory Committee that recommended Dublin School for conversion.

The Murray board ultimately voted for Frederiksen.

Candidates expressed varying opinions on subjects of open space classes, binding arbitration for teachers and possible renting of Dublin School classrooms by Valley Christian Center.

David Foster, a former teacher, said he didn't like open space classes. "I think educators started it as an experiment."

Donald Biddle said the district should encourage an open enrollment. "We should let students and parents choose what best meets their needs and abilities."

Molz felt an open space class tends to be distracting.

Linda Jeffery, the only incumbent in the race for two board positions, commented, "If we were to build another school in the district, I think I would go for contained classrooms."

On binding arbitration, Mrs. Cooley reiterated her opposition, adding "public employes should not have the right to strike."

Biddle and Mrs. Jeffery also expressed reservations on full binding arbitration for teachers.

initiative" and he is concerned by this breakdown in the representative system.

"Things are getting dumped on us at great cost, but without the peoples' say," he said.

Now functioning on a ten - hour - day, four - day - week, the Livermore - Pleasanton muni courts are "able to bring a person to trial in about 60 days ... and I think that's very good."

He later acknowledged that "between 75 and 80 percent of all cases we hear are related in some way to drugs or to alcohol," and he expressed concern at the growing useage of "hard drugs" within the Valley.

Judge Lewis and Judge Mark Eaton have responsibility over all judicial proceedings in the townships of Murray (Livermore) and Pleasanton (Dublin, Sunol and Pleasanton) but excluding persons under the age of 18, who must be assigned direct to Juvenile Court when that crime warrants.

Strike survey to 258 teachers

Classified employes in the Amador and Pleasanton school districts will receive questionnaires today asking if they'd be willing to go on strike to receive a higer percentage of pay and if binding arbitration is not negotiated.

Negotiators for Chapter 155 of the California School Employees Association (CSEA), representing Amador and Pleasanton district classified employes, and administration have been in negotiation over contract since May of 1976.

CSEA chapter leadership claims "the districts have refused to grant binding arbitration and an agency shop. Also, the districts will not agree that the contents of an evaluaion are subject to the grievance procedure in a contract."

On the questionnaire, being sent out to 258 members, the CSEA chapter leadership states further, "What we have gained so far is maintenance of last year's benefits — with a modified dental plan for part-time employes — and a salary offer of 3½ per cent to date."

The four questions asked are:

Would you be willing to go on strike to receive a higher percentage of pay?

Would you be willing to go on strike if we cannot negotiate a better evaluation system or transfer system?

Would you be willing to go on strike if we cannot negotiate binding arbitration or agency shop?

Would you be willing to observe a teacher strike by not crossing their lines?

Estate plan course set

LIVERMORE — Another of the popular three - week courses in estate planning will begin Thursday, Feb. 17.

More than 250 local residents have already completed the course on how to handle your money. Classes are at Livermore High, 7 - 9 p.m. There is no registration fee but interested persons are requested to sign up in advance at the Adult School office, 3044 East Ave.

The course will again be taught by Philip Butler, president of Managed Investments of San Francisco.

There will be two more sessions of this course this spring: April 14, 21 and 28 and May 19 and 26 and June 2.

Council opposes new local prison

PLEASANTON — The city council unanimously declared itself against location of a women's prison here Monday night.

The Camp Parks area, which houses a federal youth correctional facility and the county jail, is on the list of sites which the state is considering for a new women's prison.

Two prisons are enough, council members said late Monday night.

Mayor Robert Philcox suggested that the council notify the department of corrections about the council's opposition to the prison proposal. A copy of the letter will go to the Valley's assemblyman, Floyd Mori, a former city council member here.

"We may as well tell them now, at the start of the idea, that we are opposed to it," said Philcox.

"I agree," said Council Member Frank Brandes. "Otherwise we could be the prison capital of the West."

"I'm not interested in that image either," said Vice - mayor Joyce LeClaire.

Foreign students to visit

Area homes needed

PLEASANTON— Forty European students will spend the month of August in Pleasanton in a Foreign Study League Program to provide an understanding of Americans and their lifestyles.

Their stay will be a cross-cultural experience of living with American families and attending Amador Valley High School for formal classwork and sightseeing.

The August program will be the second "Homestay" program of the league in Pleasanton. There are 30 such programs in the Bay Area. Readers Digest Association, Inc. is the league's corporate owner.

Homes are needed for the visiting students. Host families should be able to provide room and board and a place in the family's activities. The students— most of them older teenagers with some fluency in English— will have their own spending money, medical insurance and will be screened for suitability.

The students will be from France. Their program activities will include classes in English and Contemporary American Society with participation by local businessmen and community leaders. John McDonald and Jack McConnell, both local teachers, will design and conduct the classes.

Larry Moore, program coordinator, may be contacted by persons who want to participate as host families, class participants or occasional host during the students' visit. He may be reached at Amador Valley High School, 846-2818, or at home, 447-6988.

Field trips are planned to Muir Woods, Sausalito, San Francisco, Great America, Yosemite, Carmel and Monterey, Marine World and other Bay Area sights of interest.

Livermore school sets new literature class

LIVERMORE — Teachers, aides and librarians who want to develop more insight into literature are invited to a class in the Livermore Unified School District March 4 - 5.

Those in the class will learn how to develop interpretive questions for literature discussions and will be qualified to implement the "Junior Great Books: and "Getting Into Books" programs in classrooms.

The course will be held at the Mendenhall school library, 3:30 to 10 p.m. Friday, March 4, and 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Attendance both days is required.

Registration fee is $20 for no credit, $50 for three semester units of credit from the College of Notre Dame.

Registration should be mailed by Feb. 18 to Georgia Ramm, Gifted Department, Livermore Unified School District office, 685 Las Positas Blvd., Livermore.

Volunteers' seminar

Four Foothill seniors in BofA awards test

PLEASANTON— Four Foothill High School seniors will compete in the Bank of America's 1977 achievement awards program.

Each will receive a personally - engraved plaque and compete March 24 with students from neighboring high schools. Judging at this zone event will be conducted by a panel of educators and business and community leaders, and will be based on written compositions, group discussions, scholarship and civic and school activities.

The top ranking students are Terry Schoop, fine arts; Jori Alexander, vocational arts; Beth Eby, science and mathematics, and Lorraine Basnar, liberal arts.

First-place winners in this event then advance to the regional finals. Second and third-place zone winners in each field receive $100 and $75, respectively.

Crafts fair

The family tutorial program, which serves the Valley and is sponsored by Associated Community Action Program, will have a benefit crafts fair Feb. 26, 27 and March 5 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the program's headquarters, 1435 Grove Way, Hayward.

Anyone with new objects, things like wall plaques, and photos or used items, should call 881-0300 for instructions about donating them. Latin, Asian and European culinary treats will be on sale at the fair.

Surplus books sale announced

PLEASANTON— The Pleasanton Joint School District has a number of obsolete textbook available to parents wishing to provide extra study materials for their children.

Examination copies are available at the District Media Center on the Pleasanton School campus through the month of February.

School candidate's coffees scheduled

PLEASANTON— Earnestine Schneider, a candidate for the Pleasanton Joint School District Board of Trustees, has announced the following coffee-receptions in support of her candidacy.

The coffees for Mrs. Schneider are being coordinated by Margaret Sherinian.

Life-saving clinic set

WALNUT CREEK — If somebody keels over at a party, choking or having a heart attack — can you keep her alive until the ambulance arrives?

Life - saving procedures will be taught at Las Lomas High School, 1460 Main St., Walnut Creek, at 8 p.m. today.

"How You Can Save a Life Before the Paramedics" is co - sponsored by the high school parents organization and John Muir Hospital. Staff members from the hospital will demonstrate the anti - choke maneuver, how to keep a person breathing and their heart pumping.

The program is free.

Coed rifle unit planned

LIVERMORE — A first in the Valley this year, Livermore High will be launching a "guys and gals" rifle squad.

Clinics are underway now for majorettes, baton flags, color guard, rifle and I.D. units. Practices will be held in the band room at 3:30 daily. New recruits are needed in all squads.

Details are available from Bandette chairperson Mrs. Parish (447 - 7585) or Livermore High band director Mike Ward.

Quake symposium set as Chabot offering

Earthquakes and local risk is the subject of a three-part symposium being sponsored by Chabot College - Valley Campus and slated to start Tuesday, Feb. 22.

The public is invited to attend these meetings, which will be conducted in the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory auditorium, Building 123, near the West Gate, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

First part of the symposium on Feb. 22 will deal with the basic subjects; the cause of earthquakes and earthquake prediction. Presenting these topics will be Dr. Thomas McEvilly of the University of California at Berkeley and Dr. Jack Everndon of the US. Geological Survey in Menlo Park.

The second Tuesday evening, March 1, will concentrate on earthquakes and ground motions and earthquakes and the single family dwelling. Discussing these topics will be Dr. Roger Borcherdt of the U.S. Geological Survey, Menlo Park, and Dr. Frank Tokarz, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

The third and final evening, March 8, will consist of a panel discussion on earthquake risk and the response of society.

Members of the panel will be Herbert Street, building codes, City of Livermore; Frank Zwolinski, emergency services for Alameda County; Guy Puccio, realtor and appraiser, Hayward; Dr. Karl Steinbrugge, chairman, seismic safety commission, State of California; Larry Wight, geophysicist, Tera Corporation of Berkeley; Dr. Donald O. Emerson, geologist, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory panel leader.

Livermore grad earns honors

LIVERMORE — James Miller, son of John and Ruth Miller, has received a science scholarship from the Achievement Awards for College Scientists Foundation, Inc.

Miller is a student of veterinary medicine at the University of California at Davis. A 1962 Livermore High graduate, he holds a degree in biology from the University of New Mexico.

He spent five years in the Navy as a flyer and is now a junior at Davis. He is married with two children.

Spring math meeting

The California Mathematics Council, Northern Section, is holdng its spring math conference at California State University at Hayward March 19.

About 1,000 teachers as well as students are expected. The conference will feature space industry speakers who will explain space exploration and the findings from the landing on Mars.

Among many noted math speakers are George Polya, Frank Armbruster, Evelyn Neufeld, Harold Taylor, Brother Alfred and local speakers Richard Nodlinski of California High School, Jerald Ball of Chabot College, Arthur Simon of Cal State Hayward, and Robert McFarland, County mathematics coordinator.

Pre-registration cost is $2 for students, $4 for members, and $5 for non - members.

The workshop is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on March 19 at Cal State.

For further information write Kay Gilliland, 12391 Skyline Blvd., Oakland 94619.

Teacher tribute

Intelligent, objective coverage of the community's school business is never easy; it has become even more difficult throughout the months of tense, sometimes bitter contract negotiations between teachers and school boards.

The press and the reporter are caught up in that conflict, castigated by one side or the other for our "unfair coverage." A recent example was the printed piece circulated throughout Pleasanton and Dublin and which branded our Al Fischer as some sort of "Uncle Tom" in an attempt by the author (unstated and unknown) to tie the teacher - administration relationship to the nation's history in black slavery.

Mr. Fischer was not unduly disturbed by that attack, but he was surprised (and pleased!) when the educational fraternity last week included him in its highest honors' list for members of the news media.

The "John Swett Awards" are given by the California Teachers Association only upon nomination by a local teachers' group. It was the Murray Teachers Association — which earlier in the year went through difficult contract negotiations — which saw fit to single out Al Fischer and The Times for a John Swett Award nomination.

Next month, Mr. Fischer will be among just 22 such honorees drawn from throughout the state to share in the CTA's spotlight. It is significant that the highest of those commendations will go to Alex Hailey ... the writer who turned the bitterness of an earlier American tragedy into a triumph of 20th century understanding.

We would wish the same kind of understanding for those who run our schools, and those who must report that function to the people.

More than a project

Elsehwere on this page there appears a letter from a reader who offers interesting thoughts on "public housing projects." We aren't certain Thurmon Caudill is correct in his claim of durability for World War II housing ventures such as Komandorski Village, but we do suggest he is on target when he says "it's not the building, it's the way they're administered."

Livermore's Leahy Square is new, but so are the problems of crime and vandalism which seem to abound there. It takes more than four walls, as Mr. Caudill warns us. It is a critique every Housing Authority should consider, before they build.

Hindsight/Foresight

Back to 3 R's

Two down and three to go!

With Murray and Livermore school districts having settled on contracts, it remains for Amador, Pleasanton and San Ramon to follow suit.

Which may be easier said than done.

The major point of contention has and will continue to be binding arbitration of grievances. A test case of sorts could be shaping in the Murray district which adopted an advisory form several months ago.

The potential action, and that of the Pleasanton district's in going to fact-finding, will be watched closely by other districts who have yet to settle.

Concerned followers of the education scene, however, might want to watch more positive developments, more attuned to their child and the classroom he or she attends each day.

We speak of a two-bill legislative package (AB 356 and AB 357) introduced barely two weeks ago by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, aimed at restoring a greater measure of local control to local school districts and placing an increased emphasis upon basic education in elementary schools.

This legislative package also purports to encourage school district accountability for the exercise of its local control in achieving improvements in fundamental edcuation.

The Education Code now contains a long list of mandated subjects that are included in the adopted course of study for grades 1-6.

The list has grown continuously as group-after-group has successfully lobbied the legislature for the inclusion of its favorite subject in the list of those classes that must be taught to our grade school youngsters.

The list now includes such items as anthropology, psychology, sociology, eastern and western cultures and civilizations and a variety of ethnic studies.

As a result, some school districts find themselves in the awkward position of having to teach complex subjects to students having difficulty learning to read and write.

AB 356 would replace the existing laundry list with a straight forward directive for instruction in "language art, arithmetic, and such other studies as the governing board (Of the district) may prescribe."

The bill adds, "It is the intent of the legislature that the instructional program in grades 1-6 shall emphasize and concentrate upon language arts and arithmetic to the end that each pupil shall acquire as high a level of skill in these basic skills as is commensurate with each pupil's ability."

Comments McAlister, "The essence of AB 356 is an attempt to stimulate a return to basic instruction in the 3 R's, and to delegate to local school boards the maximum feasible local control in accomplishing this objective."

The other measure, AB 357, would require elementary school districts, by June 1, 1979, to adopt standards of proficiency in basic skills for their pupils.

Komandorski, Leahy Square

Public housing critique

Editor, The Times:

Being one of the few Carpenters that helped build Komandorski 33 years ago, I am convinced the run down condition is due to lack of maintainance and mismanagement. The practice of using rent moneys for purposes other than adequate upkeep is responsible for its present condtion.

Komandorski was built on solid foundation, the structures are sound. It was war time built mostly by people that lived in small trailers, converted horse stalls, chicken houses and tents, any of whom would have been proud to have the privilege to move in, but it was for military people only.

Before drifting too far from the point, Livermore Villa Gulf Housing was another war-time project that was built about the same time and there was nothing wrong with it, but bureaucrats said, we can tear it down and build Leahy Square by making 2 story buildings and jamming them closer together, we'll be able to crowd another 50 families into the same place making a total of 41 people per acre. So it was done. Now, Leahy Square has become notorious for being the most vandalized and crime ridden community in the Valley. Management don't know what to do, and police are unwilling and reluctant to respond, using the exuse of being undermanned. So it goes, Leahy Square, being new and modern turns out to be the worst ghetto of the Valley.

So, before the wheels of destruction rolls over Komandorski, let's have another look. These buildings, as I have stated earlier, are firm and sound. One can run and jump on the roofs at Komandorski. If tried on the trailers, you may land straddle a stove in the kitchen. ... Yet these cracker-box trailers are praised highly by most everyone that inspect them.

Tear down Komandorski, I Say No! We the People are going to stop this shameful waste. Instead, money that comes in, start maintaining and bring these buildings back to their original and modern condition. A good start would be, by putting people in charge that has successfully managed their own apartments and know what they are doing.

Pleasanton has many 50 and 100 year old homes, and to say Komandorski is worn out at 33, is the height of nonsense. The time has come to stop this wholesale waste of tearing down needed housing. It's the same as farmers plowing under their crops while people are hungry and starving. It's time for Politicians to clean up their act and demonstrate a little sanity.

Make no mistake about it, this is another unwanted redevelopment scheme that we fought so bitterly last year. Another act of violence purportrated on low income people that are least able to defend themselves.

Censored pornography

I browsed through a copy of Hustler magazine recently, trying to get a clue about why its publisher, Larry Flynt, is in the Hamilton County Jail in Cincinnatti, sentenced to seven to 25 years for "pandering obscenity" and "engaging in organized crime."

Hustler is no different from most magazines which have photos of naked women. There are more explicit hard - core magazines, available in adult book stores in the Bay Area, but Hustler you can find for sale on liquor store magazine racks in Pleasanton and Livermore. And the clerks don't hit you over the head to buy it, either.

Hustler is the magazine which printed some papparazzi's candid photos of a nude Jackie Kennedy Onassis sunning herself on her Greek island. Perhaps the district attorney in Cincinnati is an old Kennedy Democrat and was seeking revenge for this invasion of Jackie's privacy. I don't know; it's the only motive I can figure for singling out Larry Flynt from the publishers of a dozen other magazines of this type, including Playboy and Penthouse.

Whatever the motive, the conviction by Judge William Morrisey is an atrocious violation of Flynt's First Amendment rights to publish a magazine. Judge Morrisey is a wowser bent on censoring and punishing Flynt, whom he sees as the devil incarnate. Flynt's publishing company has 200 employees in Columbus with a $2 million payroll annually, but Judge Morrisey won't let Flynt out of jail pending his appeal. If that is not vindictiveness, I don't know what is.

Judge Morrisey and his district attorney are smut - smiters and I know what they are like. I used to be one myself back in high school, under those purveyors to young minds, the Christian Brothers. Smut generated something called "mental smell," said Brother Albert, and it was to be avoided at all costs. Most of us conscientiously tried to avoid it, but being at the age of curiousity and lacking access to — nay, being terrified of — the real experience, we all found our way to the news stands and book stores, nervous and ashamed. But we still denounced it as something to be avoided.

There is even a local angle to this. The Pleasanton City Council heard a resident complain about adult movies shown a few years ago at a local theatre. They were popular, judging by all the cars in the theatre parking lot at night. Consumers were voting with their dollars. Yet the youth objected to the movies. The council "handled it" by saying it would talk privately to the theatre manager and "inform him of the problem." Censorship by the back door.

It's tragic that Flynt is in jail today. Presumably a Supreme Court judge could intervene and get him out pending his appeal, but I don't expect any of them to act. They didn't help Ralph Ginsburg when he was convicted for some very tame erotica in his magazine Eros in the 1960s. They didn't help Lenny Bruce in his court troubles when the wowsers of San Francisco and other cities violated his privacy by entering a private club and arresting him for "obscene language." It's the same language you can hear in R - rated movies today from Hollywood, which is what is meant by the bumper sticker "Lenny Bruce died for your sins."

I don't know what will happen to Larry Flynt. Who will ride to his rescue? Robin Hood? The American Civil Liberties Union? If you were writing his story as a movie, how would you end it? And how do you know your movie wouldn't be banned in Cincinnati with a warrant out for your arrest?

Sewer answer

Editor, The Times:

About 50 interested citizens including three members of the Zone 7 Board attended the regular meeting of the CARD Committee at the Pleasanton Hotel on Tuesday, Jan. 25 to hear Dr. William J. Oswald and Lorne Swanson explain what might be called "a 21st century plan for waste disposal." It is tragic that nobody from the three public agencies that constitute the LAVWMA Board were able to attend even though they were especially invited to hear Dr. Oswald, a well known scientist and professor at U.C. Berkeley speak about "algae ponds" a system in which he has been a pioneer, to convert municipal wastes into a valuable resource. Maybe those of us who live in the valley are so wealthy we can afford to ignore all such foolish notions about converting sewage into cattle feed, methane gas or protein.

Why do you suppose a well known authority on waste management living less than 30 miles away and willing at his expense to come and speak to a citizens group hasn't been called long before now to present his researches in this field? Could it be that the LAVWMA Board hasn't done its homework? Is it really somehow smarter to squander nearly a half-million dollars hiring sewer pipe contractors when there are a number of recognized experts in the field of sanitary engineering ready, willing and able to discuss reasonable alternatives to traditional pipes and sewer plants and all for practically free? It's enough to "blow one's mind." ...

If the politics of the Valley could be treated in the same way and as simply as the sewage, life here would be ever so much simpler. Isn't it Hell that everything we do here in the valley must be so damned complicated?

round the town

Operator? I know you're trying, operator, but I've been on this line for over three minutes now ... that's right ... a collect call to the president of the United States...

I know it's rather unusual, operator, but this year we have an unusual president ... it's all his idea ... that's right, he wants us Americans to call him COLLECT ... ask him questions, tell him our troubles ... that sort of thing...

What's that? You say you're getting a clear line to the White House now? Well thank you ... my problem can't wait forever ... hello, HELLO! Is this the president of the United States? ... what's that?

... Fault or earthquake?? Oh ... you say your name is WALTER CRONKITE ... well that's nice, but right now I'm not interested in playing $64,000 Question or anything like that, Mr. Cronkite ... I have this urgent problem for the president and he asked me specifically to call him and ...

You say that I have to place my question with you BEFORE the president gets it? I'm not sure I understand ... if the president of the United States wants to hear from me then why in the world would he put you on the line? I mean, you're a very nice news reader and all that, Mr. Cronkite, but what would you possibly know about my problem with .... What's that? You say all the questions "are being screened first to avoid some embarrassment to the president?" But what if I have an embarrassing problem? I mean, do you intend to take my problem and sort of "clean it up" before it reaches the president? Is that the idea?? This begins to sound like something Nixon would have cooked up ...

Yes Mr. Cronkite, I understand Mr. Cronkite ... you simply want me to tell you my problem first ... and then "as time permits" you will consider passing my problem along to the president for his answer. Is this on some kind of priority system then? If I didnt' vote for Mr. Carter does that push me further down the line for getting my problem solved? ... What if I never watch the CBS - TV Evening Report with Walter Cronkite ... does that cost me points too?

I can tell you right now, Mr. Cronkite, I never much cared for Barbara Walters' lisp and I'm not fond of that David Brinkley scowl ... but if you keep stalling me around this way I just may take Channel 5 clear off my Remote Control Tuner ... better yet I'll make me a little atomic bomb and then ...

Hello! Hello!! No operator, I was NOT trying to reach the CIA ... You say THEY want to reach ME? Now let's not get emotional about this, operator ... I was just trying to "Ask President Carter" like the program says and next thing I know I'm shunted off to this guy Cronkite and he gives me a bad time about priorities and then I said something silly about a little atomic bomb ... Yes, operator .. I know it isn't funny, operator ... No m'am, I sure wouldn't want the CIA down on me ... Yes m'am ... I wouldn't want the IRS auditing me either ... I certainly meant no harm to the president or to Mr. Cronkite, operator ... I was just trying to get my problem to the president ...

What's that operator? You say my call is being put through to the White House again? Oh, thank you, thank you operator ... You have no idea what a tremendous thrill it is for a plain American taxpayer like me to be able to talk direct to his Commander in Chief ... How does my voice sound, operator? ... I want to be just forceful enough, but with the right touch of humility ... sort of blending the best of the commentators, but without the Walters' lisp of course ... Yes, I'm all set operator ... you can now put me through to THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES ...

Hello! Hello Mr. President! I want you to know what an honor this is ... What's that? You say you're NOT the president?? Your name is DAVID BRINKLEY! How in the world did you get on this program? You aren't even on the correct channel!! I was trying to reach Walter Cronkite who is supposed to put me through to the president who invited me to ask him ...

What's that?? Somebody in the CIA tipped you off that I was planning to blow up NBC - TV! Why that's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of ... It wasn't NBC - TV at all, it was CBS - TV ... and I sure didn't mean to get the CIA and everybody else in a dither .. all I wanted to do was to "Ask President Carter" to ask Walter Cronkite to see if he could help me ...

Ohhh just forget it! Forget I ever called ... No Operator! I do NOT want to talk to Barbara Walters!! No, not even if she's willing to pay for the call ... Why don't you just transfer her call to Mr. Brinkley who could then put her in touch with Mr. Cronkite and then he might ....

Sausalito

Parking spaces are as rare as water. Prices at boutiques are so weighty the shoplifters can barely lift. You could wait in line an hour at Swensen's for a scoop of ice cream.

There are fewer and fewer reasons these days to visit Sausalito, that tourist Mecca by the bay where street artists have moved indoors to make room for gawkers.

Even the fishermen at the south end of town are reel-to-reel in this once sleepy art colony.

The fish have long since migrated to Tiburon to escape the crowds.

Success spoiled Sausalito. Once the Bay Area's bench mark for quaintness, today it is little more than Lodi with an ocean-front view.

Real people were last spotted here the day they opened the Golden Gate Bridge. Ever since a steady torrent of cartoon characters has moved in. You can tell them by their dress — army surplus jungle fatigues custom designed by Christian Dior.

Charm has been lost in all but two places, the Chamber of Commerce brochure, and high up the hill at the Alta Mira Hotel. Alas, it is one of the few reminders of a town's elegant past.

The Alta Mira is old, but it has aged gracefully, a two-story with pink stucco and tile roof surrounded by shingled cottages. In an area that boasts of views, the hotel commands the finest, a panorama of the bay stretched across those main street tourist entrapments, and to the south, the twinkling jewel, San Francisco.

Large windows and glass doors exploit the vistas, and there are patios off each room for a closer peek.

Alta Mira shows its age. Wall paper curls in a few corners, and cracks meander across the ceilings. Furnishings are real, and with substance, however. Lamps and pictures aren't nailed to the walls. They aren't rented from The Plastic Furniture Mart, either.

Extraordinary for 1970's - Sausalito.

Even more remarkable is Alta Mira's atmosphere. While the tourist hustle is performed just down the street, almost within ear shot of the lobby, up on the hill there is calm, gentility. It is relaxed enough that bus boys from the dining room double as bellhops.

Only Sunday mornings does serenity bow to mayhem. That's when half the Bay Area jams the Alta Mira's lounge and dining room for brunch. It is the finest available.

Bartenders start it off with Remus Fizzes — a frothy blend of gin and eggs and other wholesome ingredients. About 1,000 are poured every Sunday.

The meals are expensive, but curb most appetites for an entire day.

There is fresh fruit or deep purple brandied cherries, fragrant Scotch Kippers, Beef Strogonoff on delicate pastry puffs.

Specialties are Eggs Alta Mira, Eggs Princess and Eggs Benedict, casseroles blessed with rich sauces, tangy Canadian Bacon, hearts of artichoke.

Even in January, when the sun pierces through billowy fog, guests are served on the deck outdoors. Fresh air and fresh coffee merge as one exquisite aroma.

It is a splendid vantage point from which to gaze down on a village gone haywire — a lofty retreat to reflect on the difficult proposition of progress with good taste.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to start taking vitamins and wondered if you could tell me how many grams of what vitamins I should take and when. Should I gradually get into this or can I take them right away?

DEAR READER — You are already into vitamins if you are eating. A normal well balanced diet includes all the vitamins and minerals you should need for health if you have no medical problems.

Most vitamin preparations have a label which lists the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA) and the amount in the preparation. However, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-6 that provides a table of all this information for different age groups as prepared by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences. As you will see, vitamins are usually measured in units or milligrams. Others who want information on vitamins can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I do not disapprove of people taking an all purpose daily vitamin preparation — one with iron for women in the child-bearing years — if there is any question of whether or not their diet is adequate. However, it is probably best to get one's vitamins from a well balanced diet that includes enough of all the different food groups to provide the daily requirements.

People who live alone, those on diets, and those who have illnesses or poor eating habits may benefit from a daily vitamin tablet. Taking large amounts of vitamins above the RDA can cause trouble and anyone who needs large doses of medicine for a medical problem should be under a doctor's care.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a physical problem that is somewhat embarassing to relate. I'm 34 and I have involuntary erections which have occurred nightly for over two years.

This has become distressing to me. I have seen a psychiatrist who found me okay and a urologist. He gave me an X ray of my kidneys after dye injection, checked me and said he didn't think I needed a cystoscopic examination and that I was okay.

I really am perplexed and needless to say am tired most mornings due to being awakened one or two times nightly with this.

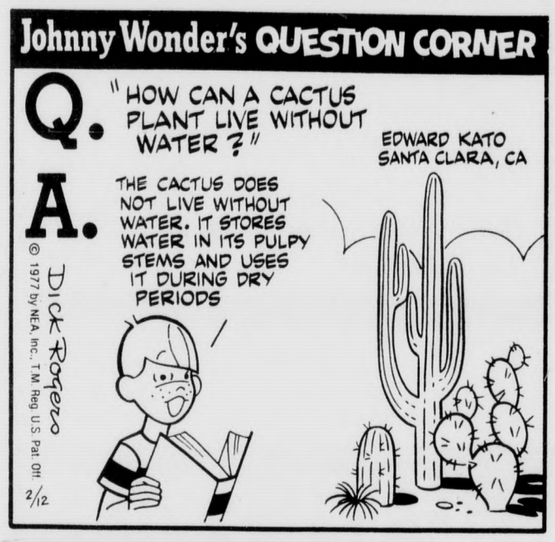
Have you heard of this before and what should I do next?

DEAR READER — Rejoice! There is not a thing wrong with you. Every normal male has the same reaction. If they don't, there is something wrong with them.

An erection occurs in response to brain mechanisms. They occur regularly many times each night during sleep and are related to the periods in a brain wave that identify "rapid eye movement" (REM). These responses even occur in the uterus in the unborn male child.

Your letter is a good example of why people need education on normal sexual function and responses. You have worried needlessly about a response that is as normal as breathing. The only abnormal thing about it is your preoccupation about it. If learning that this is the normal pattern, usually many times a night for the normal male, doesn't relieve your anxiety, then you have a psychological hang-up and that might need further investigation. But your response that you say you are worried about is quite normal.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "HOW CAN A CACTUS PLANT LIVE WITHOUT WATER?"
EDWARD KATO
SANTA CLARA, CA
A. THE CACTUS DOES NOT LIVE WITHOUT WATER. IT STORES WATER IN ITS PULPY STEMS AND USES IT DURING DRY PERIODS
DICK ROGERS
© 1977 by NEA Inc. T.M. Reg U.S. Pat Off
2/12

The cactus plant does not live without water, but it does manage to survive long periods of no rain in a remarkable manner.

Its roots lie close to the surface of the ground. They spread far out, ready to soak up any water from a rare desert rain.

The cactus stores the water in its thick, pulpy stems and uses it during dry periods.

Instead of growing leaves, which lose water quickly, the cactus plant developed spines, which do not lose water.

Its thick, leathery skin is coated with a waxlike material so that the plant may better hold its moisture, while its sharp spines keep away any thirsty trespasser.

In this way the cactus plant can live for months without rain.

During long periods of dry weather, the thick stems shrink as the plant uses up its water, and the entire cactus plant may shrivel, since it depends upon the tightly filled cells to remain upright.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're the type who makes friends and contacts in all walks of life. Today, one could help you with a current problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conditions favor you today in any action having to do with your career. Take advantage of a chance to progress in this area.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Have faith in your own ideas today, because they are sound. You also have the knack of adapting the best of what others offer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Joint commercial ventures can put money in the bank for you today, provided one of the parties doesn't do something outlandish.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In one-to-one dealings, play a secondary role. Today your associates can do more for you than you can do for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will work with extra diligence today if you're materially motivated. Zero in on the potential profit, not how hard the task is.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If a pal comes up with a business proposition today, better put him off. You're more attuned to fun; your financial know-how isn't too sharp.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your priorities in order today. First protect the interests of those under your wing, then worry about others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Obstacles won't bother you at all today. The alternatives you select will be better than the original methods.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Opportunities exist to enhance your resources today but they will not come through cold, hard, prudent types. Look for your gains elsewhere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The results you're looking for today will come only through your personal touch. Others would only trip you up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to receive today, you must first be prepared to give. What you tender unselfishly will be returned manyfold.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's jump to four spades was definitely an overbid. He did hold a tremendous hand, but there was no reason for South to expect that dummy would produce two tricks for him and unless he could find those two tricks he would not be able to bring home the game. Still, South did bid it and we have to sympathize with his decision.

West started proceedings for the defense by leading out the king, ace and queen of clubs. East discarded two diamonds and South ruffed the third club.

South thought about the fate reserved for overbidders, but there was nothing he could do about it. He had bid four spades and had to play it. He had lost two clubs and was still looking at a sure spade loser. Was there anything he could do about it?

Yes, there was. Maybe West held the singleton king of spades. South played his ace and sure enough the king dropped. Now it was a simple matter for South to cash the ace and king of diamonds, ruff a diamond and make his lucky game.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader asks what you should bid with ♠ 8 7 4 3 ♥ A x x ♦ K x x ♣ K J x after the bidding has proceeded one heart-double-pass.

The expert bid and the one recommended by teachers is to bid two hearts. This forces partner to bid again and you will try three notrump if he bids a minor suit or four spades if he bids spades. If this cue bid is too rich for your blood, try two spades or two notrump. A bid of just one spade or one notrump is inadequate.

City's study group

Pleasanton members of the League of Women Voters launched their study of the city's general plan last week and continue Feb. 24 with a look at land use and circulation. Scanning the plan here are Rosetta Pratt (left), Deanne Fraser, Karen Fritts and Noel Anger. Mrs. Anger presented a report on the scenic highways element of the plan last week. Anyone interested in participating in the study may attend the next meeting. For information, call 846-4005, or 846-4009.

Three home permits issued in month

PLEASANTON — Building permits for three single family homes valued at an estimated $121,400 were issued in January.

The building department also signed out permits for 22 additions, alterations or repairs valued at a total of $65,980 and 12 swimming pools valued at $104,000. There was one demolition permit with an estimated minus valuation of $500.

Total addition to the city's estimated assessed valuation from the permits was $290,880. A total of $3,036 was collected in fees for the building activity.

Volunteer workshop scheduled this month

PLEASANTON — The third workshop in a series of volunteer management training seminars for valley service agencies will be held Thursday, Feb. 24 at Pleasanton Greens Apartments on Vineyard Avenue.

The program will be held from 8:45 a.m. to 12 noon at Vogt Hall.

The workshop, entitled "Getting the Right Start in the Right Job," is sponsored by the Valley Volunteer Bureau and Chabot College. It will feature Judith Embree as the guest speaker and program leader and will focus on increasing the ability of the volunteer coordinator to plan and present appropriate orientation and training for agency volunteers.

Mrs. Embree is an administrator in the Citizens Initiative Parole Re-entry Project. She is a volunteer consultant with the National Center for Voluntary Action, Washington, D.C., and is a trainer in the Volunteer in the Corrections Program of the Sacramento County Probation Department, California Youth Authority.

Additional information and registration may be obtained at the Valley Volunteer Bureau, 287 Rose Ave., 462-3570.

Rose meeting

Fertilizer and spraying will be the topics touched upon by Dr. Howard Gallagher of San Mateo, a well known rose exhibitor, at an 8 p.m. meeting of the East Bay Rose Society Wednesday, Feb. 16. The meeting, to be held at the Lakeside Garden Center in Oakland, will also feature a rose bush raffle.

Without rain, more EBMUD cuts due

Although East Bay water users have cut back on the amount of water they're using, they may be asked to make further reductions by April.

Unless there is additional rain or snow in the next six weeks, a 25 per cent overall reduction in water use — ordered last week — may be increased "to 30 to 40 per cent," John Harnett, general manager of the East Bay Municipal Utility District told Gov. Edmund Brown during a meeting Friday.

Last week's mandated rationing program appears to be successful.

The daily average water consumption last year totaled 178 million gallons a day. But on Sunday, customers used only 132.6 million gallons — a 26 per cent reduction and a new low. EBMUD officials say average use since Feb. 1 has been 150 milion gallons a day.

Despite the cutbacks, precipitation will play an important role in the future of EBMUD rationing programs.

The present rationing plan is based on the assumption the district will receive "the minimum precipitation by April 1" according to Don Larkin, chief EBMUD engineer.

The "minimum" precipitation would be water equivalent to that received in 1928 — the district's driest year.

But to date, precipitation is running well below those statistics.

"The way things are going now, we'll be lucky to get that (minimum amount of rainfall)," Larkin said. "If we don't get it, we probably will be forced to cut back" even more.

And because EBMUD consumption is higher than in other places, cuts will be especially difficult to make. Before the conservation program (which provides 280 gallons a day to all single - family households) was implemented, consumption averaged 410 gallons a day — 210 for household use and 200 for exterior use.

That compares with consumption in the Hayward Municipal Water District, where the average home uses 270 gallons a day. Although consumption in the Alameda County Water District, which serves Fremont, Union City and Newark, averages 380 gallons a day, that's still behind the EBMUD average.

The greatest EBMUD consumption is east of the Oakland - Berkeley hills.

West of the hills the daily consumption is 325 gallons — 190 for interior and 135 for exterior use.

But in central Contra Costa County, including Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Moraga, Orinda and the San Ramon Valley, the daily use is 845 gallons — 265 for interior use and 580 for exterior watering.

Water use is higher in the central part of the county because of larger, generally well - landscaped lots, and fewer apartments.

"East of the hills there is newer and more of the 'country living — California style,' " Larkin said.

The climate is warmer, requiring a greater amount of water to keep landscapes green.

Despite the obvious crunch for central Contra Costa families, there have been few applications for exceptions to the 280-gallon per family allocation.

Persons interested in a higher allocation must submit a written application — in a letter form — to their local district office.

Chowchilla trial better in SF?

A public opinion expert testified Monday that the Chowchilla kidnap defendants would have a better chance for a fair trial in San Francisco than in Oakland.

Dr. John McComahay, a professor of psychiatry and public policy at Duke University, recited at a court hearing figures from a survey he conducted last fall.

McComahay said he was hired by Herbert Yanowitz, attorney for Frederick N. Woods, to poll four counties and determine the extent of prejudice against the defendants.

"I concluded there was a reasonable likelihood the defendants could not receive a fair trial in Alameda County," he said. "I found that San Francisco was a better place for the trial."

McComahay said he interviewed more than 800 persons in Alameda, Madera, San Francisco and Santa Clara counties, asking them questions about the July 15 kidnaping of 26 Chowchilla children and their school bus driver in Madera County.

Last November, the trial was ordered moved from Madera County to Alameda County but Woods and co-defendant James Schoenfeld contend that pretrial publicity in Alameda had been as prejudicial as in Madera.

The third defendant, Richard Schoenfeld, did not join in the request for another change of venue.

Surprising county surplus

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — There may be more money than anticipated left over from this year's county budget.

In a report to the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors, County Administrator Arthur Will estimated the county will have $9.45 million to put towards next year's budget.

That is nearly $1.7 million more than last year's $7.8 million carry over balance.

Frank Fernandez, assistant county administrator for finance, said the additional money will be available if the county's various departments don't spend at a faster rate than they are now.

There are "problem areas," particularly in the area of criminal justice where court and other related costs hinge directly on the number of crimes committed in Contra Costa.

Fernandez said that the additional money is mostly due to federal revenue sharing and anti-recession funds given the county.

The budget projections show that an estimated $4.5 million would be left due that was budgeted but which probably won't be spent by county departments.

The remaining 74.95 million comes largely from the federal monies and tax revenues.

"In summary, our preliminary review although giving rise to cautious optimism as to our current fiscal condition, indicates that the cost reduction efforts of department heads ... have been successful ...," Will reported.

Must lure industry

Dow's loss stung county

DANVILLE — Dow Chemical's decision not to build in Contra Costa County dealt a big blow to local economy, according to that county's fifth district supervisor, Eric Hasseltine.

Hasseltine expressed this opinion at a liaison meeting held last Thursday morning in the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon.

He suggested it might bea good idea for business representatives of industry and all interested parties to meet. It was his opinion such a group might determine what avenues are open to attract new industry to Contra Costa County. He said he hoped to get everyone together in March.

"We can't just sit around and hope some big new employer will come in and save us," Hasseltine said.

He said he would be willing to coordinate the conference.

During the meeting, Hasseltine notified the audience of 40 that Contra Costa County has extended its health plan for one year.

"We are the only public agency in California to do so," he said.

The construction of the new jail is scheduled to begin July 1, 1977, according to Hasseltine. The proposed completion date should be in two years.

When asked about the status of the new general plan for Contra Costa County, Hasseltine said, "It should be ready soon."

"TROUT AND SALMON CULTURE (Hatchery Methods)", Fish Bulletin 164 is now available from the Dept. of Fish and Game, Documents Section, P.O. Box 20191, Sacramento 95820. It is $3 per copy, and replaces Bulletin 107 which has been out of print several years.

A GROUP OF LOCAL ANGLERS spent Saturday fishing up near the Mothball Fleet area (near Carquinez Bridge).

They rented a party boat with John Severa, the skipper (known as the Sturgeon King), leaving Crockett at 7:30 AM. It was a beautiful day and they enjoyed every minute.

Thirty - five sturgeon were hooked, but only one keeper. It was a 21 - incher landed by Tom Kilgress.

Art Monaco was the one who helped newcomers how to cast and put the grass shrimp on hooks so they would stay on during casting.

John Severa was an excellent skipper, all agreed, and they plan to make the same trip again soon.

THE ED KINGS AND THE KEN CULPS traveled to Pyramid Lake looking for "cut - bows", a cross between a cut - throat trout and a rainbow trout.

Ed was teaching Ken how to troll and land the big ones that inhabit the lake. Ken says that after a good deal of coaching he was able to land a 12 - pounder, followed by a 10 and an 8 pound cutbow.

Mrs. King threatened to throw Ken over the side for keeping those little fish, but Ken finally talked her out of it, saying he was a bum swimmer and it was a long way to shore. It seems that Mrs. King usually catches fish in the 20 pound class, so wasn't to impressed with "those minnows".

Trolling was deep and a T-4 silver flat fish was the usual bait. There is a special angler's license required to fish the lake.

CALIFORNIA SPORT FISHING regulations booklets for 1977 will be available within a week at most places where licenses are sold, the Department of Fish and Game has advised.

First copies of the 32-page booklet are in the mail, and all will have been received by DFG offices and license agents by Monday, Feb. 21, the department said.

The new rules spelled out in the booklet will take effect March 1.

BACK IN NOVEMBER the DFG reported that a 33-pound striped bass caught in the Sacramento - San Joaquin Estuary near Suisun City had a longevity record for a bass carrying a DFG tag. The fish had been at large for 17 years, five months.

Well, records are made to be broken. They now report from Stockton that a 30-pound striper caught Dec. 5 in the Sacramento River near Garcia Bend by Michael Viduya of North Highlands in suburban Sacramento carried its tag for 18 years, seven months.

Barry Collins, junior aquatic biologist with the striper project, said that the fish's age at the time of tagging (1958) was a 25-incher weighing 7 and ½ pounds was estimated at five years. That would make the striper about 23 years when it was finally caught.

Meanwhile, a striped bass caught in Newport Bay Orange County, claimed the record for farthest southward movement of a striper tagged in the estuary. This was the first evidence of bass tagged in the estuary migrating south of Monterey.

Most of the bass tagged in the estuary are caught in the San Francisco Bay area or in the Sacramento - San Joaquin River system.

Foreman, Young sign

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foreman, wearing a shocking pink suit — when you're George Foreman you can wear what you want — at a news conference Tuesday to announce a fight on St. Patrick's Day ... in Puerto Rico.

The fight, actually on St. Patrick's Night, March 17, in San Juan will be a 12 - rounder against Jimmy Young and will be televised live in the United States by ABC.

Also on the card, and on television, will be a scheduled 15-round title defense by Robert Dura of Panama, the World Boxing Association champion, against Jose Marquez of Puerto Rico.

The show will be promoted by Don King, who introduced Foreman as the world champion and called Young "the most underestimated fighter in the world today."

Young appeared, dressed in gangster black — and he certain could play the role of a villain in Foreman's career. Several promoters are busily at work trying to line up a rematch between Foreman and heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali in what could be the world's richest fight.

Young has proved himself in the last two years to be a frontline heavyweight. The Philadelphian first gained recognition by outpointing Ron Lyle in 1975. Last year he lost a disputed 15-round decision to Ali and again beat Lyle earlier in 1976 and put Foreman on the floor twice before being knocked out in the fifth round.

"I think George will come out trying to knock my head off," said Lyle. "This will be a time George Foreman will be tested for his power. I promise you that. I'm looking for something to happen."

"I thought you been missing ducking all them punches, boy," interrupted Foreman. "But you been catching them." Young is a boxer, depending on moves and not on power. And most observers feel his only chance is to tire out Foreman, whose stamina still is questioned.

"I really don't know how to go 12 rounds, you know," said Foreman. "I don't have any stamina. So, I try to go two or three rounds. You can look at my record which is loaded with early knockouts.

"I'm being facetious," he added, unnecessarily.

Foreman reportedly will be paid $700,000 and Young $250,000.

Marquez replaces Hector Medina of the Dominican Republic against Duran. No reason was made for the change.

Warriors rout Atlanta, 117-111

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors didn't really miss all-star forward Rick Barry last night at the Coliseum Arena, as they overpowered a sloppy Atlanta Hawk team, 117-111.

Barry was out with bruised ribs suffered in the all-star game, but Phil Smith came through with 35 points and Jamaal Wilkes to pick up the slack. Rookie Sonny Parker came off the bench to score a career-high 14 for Golden State while Atlanta's John Drew led all scorers with 36.

The clubs clicked off a quick exchange of baskets in the early moments, before a rapid seven-point burst by Smith opened up some daylight for the Warriors.

With just 1:44 gone in the game, Gus Williams made a slap-steal of rookie Armond Hill's dribble and a cross-lane pass to Smith resulted in a sailing-slam dunk and a 9-4 Warrior lead. Four minutes later, Golden State had doubled that advantage as dunks and Atlanta mistakes again figured prominently.

Dwight Davis took a long up-court pass alone on the right flank and, correctly reasoning that he was unlikely to be called for a charge, barged over Hawk center Joe Meriweather for a dunk-try that failed but netted him two free throws. Warriors, 19-10.

Meanwhile, Atlanta was basing its offense on a series of untrustworthy fallaway jumpers that glanced harmlessly ordinarlly off the rim, or worse, drew nothing but air.

The Hawks' Golitahan helping of turnovers consisted of primarily of untold traveling calls — some by wide-open players 25 feet from the hoop.

Most of Atlanta coach Hubie Brown's advice to his troops was of a variety so fundamental one got the impression that this had to be the Hawks' first exhibition. — By Dave Weber

AV routs Dublin

Amador Valley High School's girls basketball team played possum with Dublin last night, ripping off numerous unhampered fast breaks on route to a flying 53-22 win in East Bay Athletic League action in Dublin.

The league-leading Dons upped their record to 10-1, the only loss coming at the hands of Livermore, who they play the last night of the season. Dublin, meanwhile, dropped to 3-8.

The combination of lay-ins by Debbis Oxsen and Jamie Watson at the outset of the second half spelled the doom for the Gaels who looked from the bottom up all evening.

Jayne Kuhns led the awesome AV attack with 16 markers while Oxsen, getting eight of her points on four straight shots to open the second half, finished the night with 14 points. Sheryl Withoft added 12. Joanne Callender led the Gaels with seven.

The Dons enjoyed their biggest lead of the night at 51-18 just before the end of the game, but it wasl all academic by then. After taking a 12-3 first - quarter lead they took a 29-10 advantage at halftime.

Amador then sprinted out for a 10-0 spurt, upping their lead to 39-10, before the Gaels finally scored their first bucket of the second half on a Marge Downing jumper. Downing had six markers for the losers.

In another EBAL contest last night Livermore stayed in title contention with a resounding 52-36 win over host San Ramon.

Patti Shirley sparked the winners' attack with 25 points as the Pokes built up a 22-6 first-quarter advantage. The winners added 12 points in the second per3od for a 34-13 margin but were held to 18 points in the second half.

No San Ramon player scored in double figures. San Ramon ace Nancy Kerlinger fouled out of the game and the Wolves' slim hopes went with her. Livermore had 18 fouls and the Wolves 13.

Borg withdraws from SJ tourney

SAN JOSE — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg, just a few hours before his opening match scheduled Tuesday night, withdrew from San Jose's $50,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament because of pulled stomach muscles.

"I've had this injury before, so I'm very scared about it. If there was some way I could play, I would," said Borg, the 20-year-old Swede who overcame the same problem, with the aid of cortisone shots, to win the Wimbledon singles title last year.

"We're going to have to pretend he was just another guy," said tournament director Barry MacKay.

Most of the tickets for Tuesday night's matches had been sold.

Borg said he noticed the injury while practicing Monday and he was examined by a doctor Tuesday.

The tournament's fifth-seeded player, Ray Ruffles of Australia, was upset Tuesday afternoon by Czech Jiri Hrebec who won 7-5, 5-7, 7-5. Hrebec, who was behind 4-2 in the final set, advanced after winning the tiebreaker game 7-4.

In other afternoon matches, Billy Martin of Los Angeles ousted Zan Guerry of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 6-1, 6-1; Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia beat Paul Kronc of Australia, 7-6, 6-4, and Rolf Norberg of Sweden wore down veteran Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., 6-7, 6-2, 6- 2.

PALM SPRINGS — Rik Massengale's life was in shambles back in 1974.

He wasn't making expenses as a touring golf pro. He'd made a tentative decision to quit the circuit and take up farming. He didn't even like the game anymore. His marriage was in trouble. Enormous frustration was chewing at his stomach and he has an ulcer. Anger was a constant companion.

A conversation with evangelist Billy Graham, in a hotel room in Charlotte, N.C., changed everything. Both his personal life and his playing life made a 180-degree change in course.

"I entered into a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," said Massengale, a movie-star handsome, soft-spoken, almost shy Texan.

"It changed my life."

And he gives full credit to Graham and his relationship to Christ — Massengale skirts calling it religion, instead prefers to term it "a personal relationship" — to his emergence as one of golf's more outstanding players.

Since that conversation in May of 1974 he has changed from a struggler, a hanger-on, to a very considerable force — a factor to be reckoned with in any event he enters.

In his first four years he'd averaged less than $22,000 a season. He blew every chance he had at a title. But since his acceptance of Jesus, Massengale said, in the last 2½ years he has won three titles, including last week's Bob Hope Desert Classic, and collected almost $250,000 from the game he'd planned to abandon.

His marriage is solid and happy. The anger has gone. The frustration has disappeared.

He talks candidly — softly and with the drawl characteristic of north Texas — of the change in his life. There are no evangelistic overtones, no attempts at conversion, no hard sell. He mentions it only in response to questions.

It's a private thing with him, but far from a casual thing.

He and wife Cindy now are members of a tour Bible study group that holds weekly meetings in someone's hotel room, usually on Tuesdays. They are called by the other players, and often refer to themselves, as "the Bible-pounders."

"The wives usually meet during the day, when the men are out practicing," Massengale said, "and the men meet at night. Sometimes, when we have guest speakers, we meet together."

Other members of the group, now in its second decade of existence, include Kermit Zarley, Babe Hiskey, Tom and Paul Purtzer, Wally Armstrong, Howard Twitty, Bob Gilder, Richard Crawford. "There used to be only about a half-dozen of us," Massengale said, "now there are 15 or 20, plus the wives."

He's also very active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and last year spoke at a White House luncheon to a gathering of some 200 athletes.

"I came from a family that forced me to go to church every Sunday, right through the time I was in high school," said Massengale, now 30. "But it was just something you did, something you were expected to do."

The change came when he was at a low point.

"In 1974, I'd taken a week off and had gone back to Texas," he said. "We were visiting my brother-in-law, who has a dairy farm. He was telling me there's lots of money in dairy farming and you can kind of learn the business as you go along.

"I was doing very poorly then. I really didn't like the game any more. I didn't enjoy going to the golf course. I was angry all the time, so frustrated I could feel it in my stomach. I didn't know what an ulcer was, but I thought I was getting one.

"My marriage was in trouble — not to the point of divorce or anything like that. But I'd come home with my frustrations and problems and Cindy had spent all day in a hotel room with two small kids and she didn't need my problems — she had plenty of her own.

"Well, I decided I'd play the next couple of months, just until the tour got back to Texas, and I'd quit and take up dairy farming.

"I knew about the Bible study group and when we were in Charlotte they had Billy Graham as a guest speaker. Cindy and I decided to go to the meeting. I had a long talk with Dr. Graham.

"He convinced me to enter into a personal relationship with Jesus Christ.

"Since entering that relationship, I haven't had a temper problem on the golf course. My marriage is good. Everything is good.

"Before that year was over, the year I talked with Dr. Graham, I felt that God had given me the desire to continue golf."

Tri-Cities cage

Porter's effort falls short

Kory Porter's 16 points weren't enough for the Oakland Arts Friday night as they dropped a 32-29 Tri-Cities basketball game to the Allied Brokers.

Dick Advincula led the losers with 12 points.

Phil White tallied 12 points as Rubber Enterprises rang up a 29-20 win over Galaxy.

Jon Weisheit paced the losers with eight markers.

Mike Faeth scored 14 points and two other team mates reached double figures as Vern's Car Wash drenched protesting Round Table Pizza, 50-43.

Three technical fouls were assessed in the game and Round Table added to the controversy by placing the game under protest.

Mike Ferguson added 13 points for Vern's while Jim McClure had 12.

Herb Tootle and Larry Carpenter each had 12 points for Round Table while Jim Uhrimak had 10.

Wells bopped the Hobits, 28-18, as Owen "Wayne" Jackson led with 15 points as opposed to Jerry Pepmueller's seven for the losers.

Systech pulled the rug out from under Red Carpet, 33-30, despite Joe Barbera's 15 points for the Realtors. "Pistol" Powell paced Systech with nine tallies.

GGC schools advance

SAN MATEO — Golden Gate Conference schools primarily benefitted from an upheaval in the California Community College basketball poll this week.

While Cypress took over first thanks to a pair of defeats handed Santa Rosa by Camino Norte Conference foes last week, San Jose leaped four notches to seventh and Foothill jumped to 10th from 20th.

On the other hand, San Francisco dropped a couple of rungs to eighth while De Anza was part of a seven-way tie for the 19th and final spot.

Diablo Valley and Chabot, struggling along in the nether regions of the GGC standings, went, of course, unmentioned.

Meeting set

HAYWARD — Teams or leagues wishing to participate in this year's Connie Mack or Mickey Mantle Baseball Programs are invited to attend an organizational meeting tonight at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be held in room 2614 in the PE offices building.

Connie Mack League is for players 17 and 18 years old who will not reach their 19th birthday before April 1. The Mickey Mantle League is for 15 and 16 year olds, but primarily for the latter so as not to interfere with the 13-15 year old program.

Cagers named preps of week

DANVILLE — Doug Murrey of St. Mary's High School and Pinole Valley's Steve Storrer are this week's winners of the Flecto Sports Award, the East Bay Prepwriter's announced this morning.

Murrey took the Alameda County award by scoring 22 points and grabbing 19 rebounds in the Panthers Catholic Athletic Legue title-clinching win over St. Joseph's last week.

He hit 11 of 19 from the floor, including canning hs last five in a row and nine of his last 11. Against De La Salle, he tallied 21 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to up the Panthers' season mark to 23-4, 11-0 in the CAL.

St. Mary's winning streak is now 14, the longest current basketball skein in the East Bay.

Storrer, a 6-4, 185-pound junior forward, set a school record in tallying 38 points in an 81-53 Spartan win over Richmond to earn the Contra Costa honor.

He hit 16 of 22 shots from the floor and six of seven from the line in between grabbing 10 rebounds.

Other Contra Costa nominees were Monte Vista basketball player Ken Krey, San Ramon wrestler teve Ramos and Pleasant Hill basketball player Judy Iten.

Alameda scribes nominated only one other athlete, Memorial soccer player Joe Pimental.

Self-made inventor to speak

Fought poverty, prejudice to become top toy designer

PLEASANTON — Your kid may have a Mattel "Wizzer," but have you ever heard of an oy - oy?

That's the opposite of yo - yo, and it's the latest invention of Redwood City resident Paul L. Brown. The freelance toy inventor will be speaking to the public at 7 p.m. Tuesday night, Feb. 22, at a meeting of the Tri - Valley Chapter of Inventors Workshop International in the Vineyard Mobile Villa, 3263 Vineyard Ave.

The "Wizzzer" is a stringless gyroscopic trick toy top. Brown's new invention is a versatile toy described by him as "basically a bobbin with a tethered object at the end of it."

New he's working on a toy which rises and floats though the air. A patent is pending on the latest invention.

Brown was born and raised in Springfield, Ohio. He was the sixth child in a family of twelve. The family was so poor that their parents were forced to send five of the children, including seven - year - old Paul, to the Clark County Children's Home. It was there that he received his first store - bought Christmas present, an Erector set.

As the years passed, he spent much of his spare time in an improvised attic workshop where he could tinker with his creations. He also became a Boy Scout, reaching the rank of Life Scout, and in his last year at the orphanage he was captain of the basketball team.

At the age of 16, he left the Children's Home. He dropped out of Springfield Senior High School before his senior year and literally begged his way into the Civilian Conservation Corps where he soon became an assistant leader at a $36 - a - month salary.

He gave $25 of that to his mother and with the rest enrolled in two correspondence schools, one to study radio repair, the other for mechanical drafting.

His mother died two years later and soon afterward he went to live in Cleveland, working at menial jobs and studying nights and through correspondence schools.

In 1941, Brown graduated first in his class from Fenn College Engineering Defense Training Program (now Cleveland State University.) But it took him a year to get a job because he was black — in contrast to all the other members of his class who were immediately placed in jobs.

During the war, he was accepted for air cadet training in Alabama but was washed out of the program two months before graduation, a victim of the racial quota system. Later, he was transferred to the ground forces where he became a sergeant and served in France with the 837th Engineer Aviation Battalion, supervising the work or three or four other draftsmen.

Upon his discharge, he tried unsuccessfully to find work in private industry as a design draftsman and went back to his prewar job as a cartographic draftsman with the U.S. Lake Survey.

At the age of 38, unable to advance beyond that position, he moved to California where he found less prejudice and was able to get ahead.

In 1973 he resigned from his position with the Army Corps of Engineers, San Francisco and now at the age of 60 is a successful toy inventor.

Housing board picks two, Komandorski debate on

PLEASANTON — Dawn Gordner and Pat Broughton were named to the housing authority board of commissioners by the city council Monday night after interviews with seven candidates for the positions.

Gordner, a past president of the Valley's chapter of the American Association of University Women, will replace William Thompson, who retired after serving two terms.

Broughton, a Komandorski Village resident, will replace Beverly Montgomery, who resigned the seat reserved for Komandorski Village tenants.

The two new appointees share the opinion that it doesn't make much difference whether Komandorski Village is refurbished or demolished and replaced with new housing.

The important thing, said Gordner, is that the residents feel like they are a part of the community "rather than an isolated segment out there, if they remain outside the city".

Gordner prefers that the housing be located in the city if the housing authority replaces the old domiciles, but "the people's preferences should be taken into account".

Judging by interviews with three of the four candidates for the Komandorski Village seat, tenants would prefer to remain on the site and simply have the housing authority refurbish the units.

Charles Burdine, who got high marks from two council members in discussing the appointees, emphasized what could be done with a paint brush to improve the project's appearance. George Arsenault, who did some part - time paid maintainance work for the housing authority a few years ago, felt the same way. Marguerita Menchaca agreed with that position, too.

It was a view not shared by Roger McLain, former council - member and ex - commissioner of the housing authority who interviewed for Thompson's position.

"Those buildings should not be there," said McLain. "They are firetraps. We are remiss in not getting people out of there. It it is not safe, decent housing and we should do everything we can to get rid of it. I felt very fortunate that I don't have to put my family through that."

Broughton said the project carries a stigma in some people's minds, but when friends visit there, they are surprised to find well - kept apartments. She praised the sense of community there, which she felt is better than in more expensive neighborhoods.

Farm board won't resign in protest

LIVERMORE — It was a close call, but local members of the Alameda County Resource Conservation District have decided not to resign in protest over the new conflict of interest codes.

At least, not for now.

According to a newsletter received by the five - member RCD board, several other boards in the state have walked out rather than agree tthe code which calls for statements showing how individual directors' finances could be affected by actions of the board.

The code also calls for complete financial disclosure of board members' holdings, which in the case of local ranchers and farmers includes a substantial investment in land and equipment.

The RCD, with its three - cent tax rate, works in cooperation with the federal Soil Conservation Service to bring technical assistance to farmers and ranchers in the area.

In spite of their small budget and minor impact on the local scene, directors were afraid any action they took on behalf of farmers could be construed as conflict of interest.

Director Ed Rundstrom, however, had spent time discussing the issue with county counsel Tom Fennone and with his own son, who counsels the Resource Conservation District in Yolo County.

Rundstrom explained it would be "very unlikely" they would have to make public the extent of their holdings unless they wanted to vote in a decision that would raise their own monthly income $100 or more or enhance their property values by $1,000 or better.

If such a decision came up, he explained, those members who would profit could simply abstain from voting.

After half an hour of discussion, members Rundstrom, Connie Frydendal, Marty Martin, Augie Hagemann and president Harry Lefever unanimously agreed to file the required papers by the March 1 deadline.

Conflict of interest codes are required for all county boards and commissions, in order to avoid the possibility of a board member voting himself a substantial benefit in the form of a contract to a company he owns, purchase of land he owns or some other form of profit using public funds.

Fighting for freeway signs

LIVERMORE — The state does not want collective business logo signs along freeways, but Councilman Glen Dahlbacka is encouraging the planning commission to continue studying local use of the logos at exits, to show location of gas stations, motels and restaurants.

Reviewing a discouraging letter from T. R. Lammers, district director of the state department of transportation, Dahlbacka argued with the two reasons cited in state decisions to ban the signs.

Lammers argued that "an increase in the amount of signing at an interchange could cause confusion and at busy interchanges . . . create unsafe conditions."

"That is possible at busy interchanges," said Dahlbacka, "but not in the Livermore area."

Lammers also argued that "only those businesses able to afford locations nearest the interchanges would benefit from the logo." He called it a form of discrimination.

Dahlbacka retorted with the argument, "that is part of the purchase price of locatin near an interchange. It is not a compelling argument" against the signs.

Commenting on the general idea of logo signs on city owned property along the freeway right of way, the councilman said, "I still like it. The planning commission is going ahead with their recommendations. I encourage them.

Livermore tract plan rejected by council

LIVERMORE — A lawyer and an engineer tried in vain Monday to convince city council to delay rather than deny a tentative tract map for a proposed large subdivision east of town.

Keith Frazier, attorney for property owner W. G. Wagoner, noted numerous council and planning commission objections and asked for the delay "to resolve the basics in the next six months."

The property, south of Western Pacific Railroad and west of Vasco Road, is planned for 262 single family residential lots on 89.5 acres.

Council slightly pared down the list of planning commission objections, noting that both objections and application were moot until the lifting of a cease and desist order banning new,sewer hookups.

City also objected a subdivision would overburden remaining sewage treatment plant capacity, would violate existing sewer allocation policy in the General Plan and would create a "serious health hazard" by exceeding that capacity.

City also said insufficient information was available on effects of the subdivision on local schools and approval of tentative map could place an obligation on Livermore to approve the final tract map.

Another objection was that the project would be an extension of "leap frog" development because it is not immediately next to other city development.

Overburdened streets and police protection were also cited.

"We've paid our inspection fees and environmental impact report costs," noted Frazier, "and we have the right to have some of these things accepted."

Frazier and Earl Mason of Associated Professions noted the desire to be at head of a priority list when the cease and desist order is lifted.

Mayor Helen Tirsell agreed the planning commission should draw up a priority list, but told the applicants the time limitations for approval or disapproval of tentative tract maps was outlined in city law and she could not extend their application.

City Attorney Gary Reiners said the issue could be continued, but "what vale is there in putting in a lot of time to settle minute problems that could change before the cease and desist is lifted. It depends on the constraints when the bulldozers are ready to move onto the property."

He said money spent on an EIR is not "down the drain" if the application is resubmitted in a few years and conditions haven't changed too much.

Frazier complained city staff had not reviewed the map sufficiently.

"If we are going to turn it down," noted Tirsell, "it doesn't pay to complete the park study" which involves complicated population density transfers.

Jobs for disadvantaged

NAB spurs effort

By BOB NOREK

OAKLAND — "It's working!" With 4.5 million disadvantaged people employed since 1968 and retention rate of approximately 60 per cent the "success factor is phenomenal."

That's what William G. Murphy, president of the National Alliance of Businessmen, told East Bay Metro Alliance members Tuesday morning.

The Alliance (NAB) was founded under the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968. Its goals are employment for the nation's disadvantaged including Vietnam-era veterans, disabled veterans, ex-offenders and needy youth.

Murphy told his audience the Alliance is "what is right with American business." The vice president of Mutual of Omaha said as "an old personnel man that people figure (4.5 million) really grabs me."

The Alliance president said in 1976, NAB placed 357,000 adults. He added the retention rate is 10 per cent better than the business industry recruitment figure.

Murphy pointed out that many NAB placements leave their original employers for better jobs. He saluted the effort which is a voluntary partnership of government, business, labor and education.

The guest speaker said that 40,000 loaned out executives have served as NAB administrators since the program began. "It is a rare effort that continues to be successful when volunteers serve as bosses to a paid staff," he commented.

Approximately 100,000 businesses now take part in the program which only arranges job interviews. Murphy said his "impossible dream" is to enroll 300,000 businesses in the program before his term ends.

The NAB president saluted the 534 East Bay companies involved in the Metro program. (Contra Costa firms participating include U.S. Steel, Dow Chemical, DuPont and Crown Zellerbach.)

He also urged more involvement in the program by business on a national and Metro level.

Murphy reported that President Jimmy Carter's administration has a positive attitude toward the Alliance and he is looking forward to a meeting with White House officials and continuation of the effort.

(The NAB president told The Times the assumption that business and labor are out at the White House is "not correct." Murphy said that business will play a very important role in the Carter administration not only for jobs but in other areas of responsibility.

He added business' role may not be in the traditional sense at first, but would later emerge. "After all, President Carter is a businessman," he said.)

Duane G. Anderson, chairman, East Bay Metro (Alameda/Contra Costa counties), reported the 1977 goals for the Alliance are jobs for 3,000 disadvantaged, 1,500 veterans, 100 disabled veterans, 250 ex-offenders and 6,000 for youth during the summer. The summer job total includes federal assistance.

Anderson, a Wells Fargo Bank vice president, said the Alliance in fiscal '76 placed 3,141 disadvantaged, 1,864 veterans, 38 disabled veterans, 600 ex-offenders and 5,000 needy youth.

Anderson declared, "that although economic idices point in the direction of improvement of our economy, 1977 presents a challenge which will require more intensive effort and rededication of purpose to achieve our goals."

Charles Johnson, East Bay Metro NAB veterans coordinator, told The Times that his seminars on job interviews for veterans has been very successful in placing veterans with Contra Costa firms.

Oakland Mayor John H. Reading outlined the city's economic program in regards to the NAB effort. A special report was given on the Vocational Exploration Program piloted here in 1976.

Allison Graham, a successful program trainee, gave a short address thanking the Alliance for the training and opportunity she received through the effort.

A lovely night!

An irresistible confection to satisfy everyone's hunger for fantasy, romance and happy endings is Roger and Hammerstein's 'Cinderella' to be presented by the Amador Creative Theatre Feb. 17, 18 and 19. The curtain rises on the musical machinations of silly stepsisters and the magical fairy godmother at 8 o'clock each evening and at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 19. Among the best loved musical selections are "A Lovely Night," "Do I Love You," "Ten Minutes Ago," and "Impossible." Tickets are $1.50 For students and senior citizens, and $1.75 for adults. The production is directed by Adele Denny, with student assitance from Madonna Biringer. Leonard Cooker is musical director, and choreography is directed by Barbara Purrington. In photo previews (left to right), Kelley Purrington is a conniving stepsister, Mary Frapwell sings her heart out as Cinderella, Tom Madwell as the Chancellor and Ross Tandowsky as the King confer, and Laura Collins sings the 'Stepsister's Lament.'

Pleasanton Eagle, Jenner, at dinner

A banquet honoring 118 Eagle Scouts Wednesday, Feb. 16 will be highlighted by special guest speaker Bruce Jenner, 1976 Olympic Decathlon Champion. More than 120 Bay Area leaders in business, professional and civic affairs will act as hosts at the banquet, to be held at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

The Eagle Banquet marks a major highlight for the Eagle Scouts, who have had to earn 24 merit badges to demonstrate their leadership ability and have excelled in a variety of fields. Each boy has had to originate and carry out an individual project of service to benefit his community.

Quain Kahler of Troop 911 in Pleasanton organized a work crew of boys from his unit which cleaned, sanded and painted the inside of a neglected building used for community services.

Arthur A. Bouthillier, Troop 503, of San Leandro constructed bird houses for nesting and feeding in winter while living in Germany. Because of his efforts the Bird Protection Program in the Wulhelmswald Forest is still being supported by his Scouting unit.

Flushing fat

SUNDAY: Making it through today sets a new dieting record for me. It's the first day of the rigorous Slim and Trim Diet — goodbye, beef and cottage cheese. I try to steam a crab for dinner. It tastes terrible. But I feel virtuous.

MONDAY: I lost more than two pounds over the weekend! I complain to Vivian that I've been feeling muddled and tired. Not that I expected to feel any differently. She suggests taking one teaspoonful of honey and miraculously, it DOES raise my blood sugar.

TUESDAY: It's amazing how many things I've learned to do with raw vegetables, fish and chicken breasts. Seems like quite a varied diet to me, especially with that handy little recipe for making diet Jello: one envelope of unflavored gelatin stirred into a can of boiling diet soda, any flavor. My kids want me to make root beer flavored.

WEDNESDAY: It isn't easy going to the supermarket and passing up all those pork chops and beef. Or worse, buying some for the kids but not for me. I buy them a package of chocolate chip cookies on sale and then drool as I'm dumping them into the cookie jar. Finally break down and taste a tiny piece. It tastes like sand.

THURSDAY: This must be some kind of miracle. I've lost six pounds, I've stuck to a diet for a WHOLE WEEK, and my clothes already feel looser. Best of all, I usually feel so comfortably full I keep thinking I must be cheating!

Editor's note: Will Pat Kennedy stick to her diet? We don't know. She doesn't know. Even Vivian at the Diet Center doesn't know, although a lady named Linda, who works there now, has already lost 42 pounds and is shooting for 50. Watch The Times for the next installment.

Supervisors OK treated water reuse

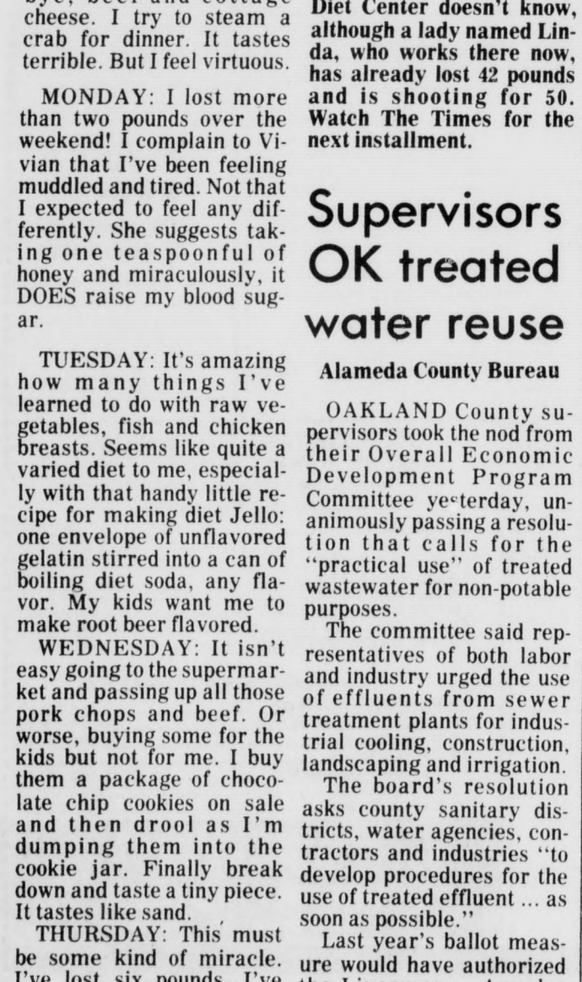
Alameda County Bureau

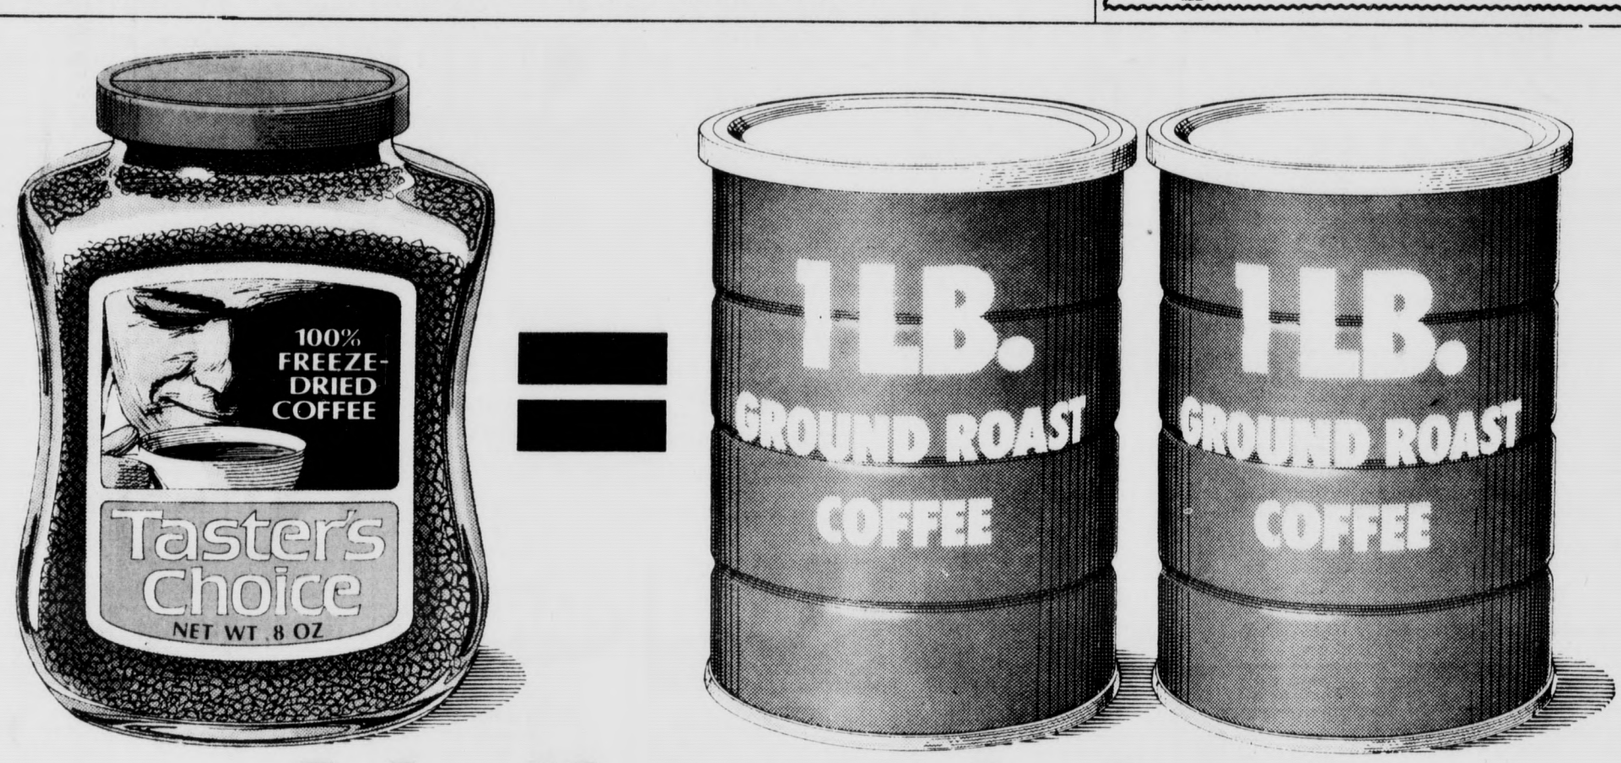
OAKLAND County supervisors took the nod from their Overall Economic Development Program Committee yesterday, unanimously passing a resolution that calls for the "practical use" of treated wastewater for non-potable purposes.

The committee said representatives of both labor and industry urged the use of effluents from sewer treatment plants for industrial cooling, construction, landscaping and irrigation.

The board's resolution asks county sanitary districts, water agencies, contractors and industries "to develop procedures for the use of treated effluent ... as soon as possible."

Last year's ballot measure would have authorized the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) to sell bonds to finance the local portion of the $28 million pipeline.





A half-pound of ours makes as much as two pounds of theirs.

An 8-oz. jar of Taster's Choice® Freeze-Dried Coffee makes 120 (6-oz.) cups of coffee. That's as much coffee as you'd get from two pounds of ground roast (following recommended serving directions of the leading national brands).

And since you make Taster's Choice by the cup, you never end up throwing half a pot down the drain.

So the next time you're comparing who gives you what for your money, remember: It's not how much it costs a pound. It's how little it costs a cup.

(And looking at it that way, 50 cents off is worth a lot of cups on us.)
